

2017 Supervisor Harassment Training Schedule

- Who is Required To Receive Training in California? Employers with a total of fifty (50) or more employees across all locations are required to:
- Re-train their California managers and supervisors every two (2) years.
 - Train newly hired or promoted California managers and supervisors within the first six (6) months of their employment or promotion, regardless of being internally or externally sourced.
- Why Should Supervisors/Managers Receive Training?
- AB 1825 mandates minimum training requirements, including sexual and non-sexual harassment, discrimination, and retaliation components, as well as anti-bullying / abusive conduct prevention training.
 - Companies with fewer than fifty (50) employees have the same liability in case of manager misconduct as larger companies, so training is always prudent.
- Who Can Train?
- California identifies only the following persons who may provide harassment training: qualified attorneys, experienced human resource professionals, experienced harassment prevention consultants, or a qualified professor or instructor of a law school, college, or university.

ManagEase offers monthly two-hour Manager Harassment Training sessions at our offices located in Irvine, CA. We also offer group pricing for two-hour harassment group training for managers and one-hour group training for employees, presented in English or Spanish, at your site.
